

KILLED IN A COLLIERY.

SCRANTON, Aug. 9.—Edward Smith, a boy of 14, fell into a rapidly revolving coal screen at the Dodge Colliery to-day and was terribly mangled. Both his legs were broken, and as soon as the machinery was stopped to extricate the lad he was dying. He expired in a few minutes after he was taken from the screen.

The New York Times

Published: August 10, 1884

Copyright © The New York Times